SENATE COMMITTEE ON HEALTH & LONG TERM CARE

Staff: Greg Attanasio (786-7410)

Background: Federal law generally prohibits group health plans from rating individuals based on health status. Employers may, however, provide their employees rewards for participating in wellness programs designed to promote health or prevent disease, or for meeting certain health targets. Wellness programs that require employees to meet health standards are subject to additional requirements, including:

- the rewards may not exceed 30 percent of the cost of the coverage;
- the program must be reasonably designed to promote health or prevent disease;
- employees must be given the opportunity to qualify for the reward at least once a

- year; and
- the full reward must be available to all similarly situated persons.

Wellness programs that require participation only are not subject to additional requirements.

State law prohibits insurers, producers, or title insurance agents from offering rewards as an inducement for purchasing insurance. Wellness programs that meet federal requirements are exempt from this prohibition.

Summary of Bill: Subject to appropriation not to exceed $100,000, the Department of Health (DOH) must convene a task force to develop a parks prescription health and wellness pilot program that can be implemented in the Puget Sound, eastern Washington, and southwest Washington regions. Task force members must include:

- the Secretary of Health, or their designee;
- two representatives from local parks and recreation agencies;
- two representatives who are health care providers and community health workers;
- two representatives from hospitals and health systems;
- two representatives from local public health agencies; and
- a representative from the Northwest Center for Public Health Practice.

The task force must advise DOH on developing:

- a process to establish a pilot program with an emphasis on diverse communities and where systematic inequities and discrimination have negatively affected health outcomes;
- model agreements that would enable insurers to offer incentives to public, nonprofit, and private employers to create wellness programs offering employees a discount on health insurance in exchange for a certain usage level of outdoor parks and trails for recreation and physical activity; and
- recommendations on ways in which a public-private partnership approach may be used to fund the implementation of the pilot program.

DOH must report the findings and recommendations of the task force to the Governor and Legislature by December 1, 2021.

Appropriation: The bill contains a section or sections to limit implementation to the availability of amounts appropriated for that specific purpose.

Fiscal Note: Requested on February 3, 2021.

Creates Committee/Commission/Task Force that includes Legislative members: No.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.
